PAL Airlines Adds Capacity to Serve Newfoundland and Labrador

St. John's, Newfoundland – PAL Airlines is affirming the company's commitment of continued service to communities in Newfoundland and Labrador by progressively adding capacity and enhancing scheduled services to meet renewed demand for travel.

"PAL Airlines understands clearly the need to continue providing our customers with dependable air travel options, even during these challenging times," said PAL Airlines President, Calvin Ash. "We have always been committed to keeping an active presence in communities we serve. By maintaining those relationships, we have been able to responsibly add capacity back into our network, offering convenient flight options based on market demand."

PAL Airlines continues to maintain a significant presence throughout Atlantic and Eastern Canada, providing scheduled passenger and cargo services. The company also offers comprehensive charter solutions and nationwide coverage through connectivity with affiliated Exchange Income Corporation airlines.

During this difficult time for the aviation industry in Canada, PAL Airlines has continued delivering essential air services throughout the region by adhering to strict safety and cleanliness protocols and emphasizing biosecurity standards throughout the operation. The company is committed to keeping appropriate safeguards in place to ensure that passengers can book travel with confidence.

"We are so pleased that PAL Airlines has been able to quickly adjust and meet the market demand of our province," said AnnMarie Boudreau, CEO of the St. John's Board of Trade. "Access to travel throughout our province for both business and leisure needs is critical for Newfoundlanders and Labradorians and we are delighted that PAL recognizes and can deliver on this."

"PAL Airlines has worked closely with our organization to make sure their service is meeting the needs of business and leisure travellers in Happy Valley-Goose Bay," said Goronwy Price, General Manager of the Goose Bay Airport Corporation. "We appreciate how quickly they've been able to meet market demand and provide the vital air services that sustain local business and promote economic development in our community."
